Pest Alert: Epitrix potato beetles

- Epitrix is a very damaging pest of potato from North America that is now established in Spain and Portugal.
- The main risk of entry into the UK is via potatoes imported from these countries.
- Symptomatic tubers and dead larvae were intercepted on consignments of Spanish ware potatoes imported from an area thought to be free of the pest, in Spring 2015. These are the first records of Epitrix in the UK. Feeding damage left by larvae on the surface of potatoes is shown below (photos courtesy of Fera Science Limited).

If you see any suspicious symptoms on tubers, please inform the relevant authority.
